THE LATEST GOSSIP IN SPORTING CIRCLES

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 29.—A collegiate Hague peace tribunal for the settlement of athletic disagreements between rival institutions of learning is the latest scheme under discussion. In speaking of the matter, a prominent graduate of the University of California said:

"In nine cases out of ten, I believe that differences can be settled by committees of graduates as was done in the recent California-Stanford misunderstanding. Provision, however, should be made, and it easily can be made, for the tenth case where graduate committees fail to come to a decision. The history of the majority of collegiate bickerings which have resulted in raptures show two things. First, that the undergraduates and members of the faculty of the belligerent institutions are not the ones to bring about a settlement. Second, while the cause of the quarrel appears at the time, a very serious and momentous affair, retrospective has shown that in the majority of cases, it was all very trivial and childish."

Falling in adjustment of a quarrel by alumni committees, there should be a supreme tribunal whose decision would be final. This court of last resort could be made up of one or more graduates of half a dozen or more colleges, to be selected by a vote of the alumni councils. The case should be submitted to them and the colleges would be expected to abide by their judgment.

Experience has shown that trivial things are likely at any time to bring about a break in the athletic relations between institutions. These differences are not only bad for athletics in general, but they bring about bad blood between the schools. They are a detriment in many ways, and they should not be allowed to exist. Certainly the faculties of the various institutions should welcome a move along the lines suggested if they are sincere in their desire for the best good of their schools.

Every college naturally is seeking to secure all the advantages possible in a controversy irrespective of whether it is fair or to the best interests of the sport or all the parties concerned. This may not be deliberate, but partisanship does not always permit of a dispassionate judgment. It is high time that the days when good, clean, inspiring rivalry can be set aside because of some foolish grievance, should be done away with. It is something that the colleges owe to the public, incidentally, who pays the money to support their sports."

The signing up of Joe Corbett, twenty years ago pitcher for and one time star of the Baltimore "Orioles," by the manager of the San Francisco club of the Pacific coast league, inspires a number of coast writers to pity. "Poor old Joe Corbett to try

LOELOCKER PRAISES HIS HOME REGION

SEASON HOLDS GREAT PROMISE FOR FARMERS AND MINES PRODUCE HEAVILY

A. L. Bachrodt, manager of the W. C. Pitt warehouse and other interests of Senator Pitt at Lovelock, was an arrival on this morning's train. Mr. Bachrodt says that Lovelock and the Big Meadows are in a very flourishing condition and a prosperous season is looked forward to.

The mines of Rochester and Seven Troughs are producing bullion abundantly, while Willard and other districts in the tributary section are rapidly getting on their feet. It has been a remarkably seasonable winter for the Humboldt valley. The snow fall was vastly greater than usual, but it passed off steadily and caused no flood damage, but nearly all sank into the soil, to later produce abundant grazing. There is still a heavy mantle on the mountains, which will ensure a plentiful runoff later in the year when it will be needed for irrigation.

The dairy interest is being successfully developed in the Lovelock section. Six hundred cows are supplying milk for the new creamery, which is putting out the Clover Blossom brand. The Big Five ranch, which has been flooded year after year, with consequent loss of crops, is now drained and the outlook is for at least 6,000 bushels of wheat. Several of the large ranches in the valley are being subdivided for colonization. Lovelock anticipates a big building boom this spring.
